

The information inside the big red box can be changed into a post to be displayed on the home page, that way it's easy to swap out or modify.

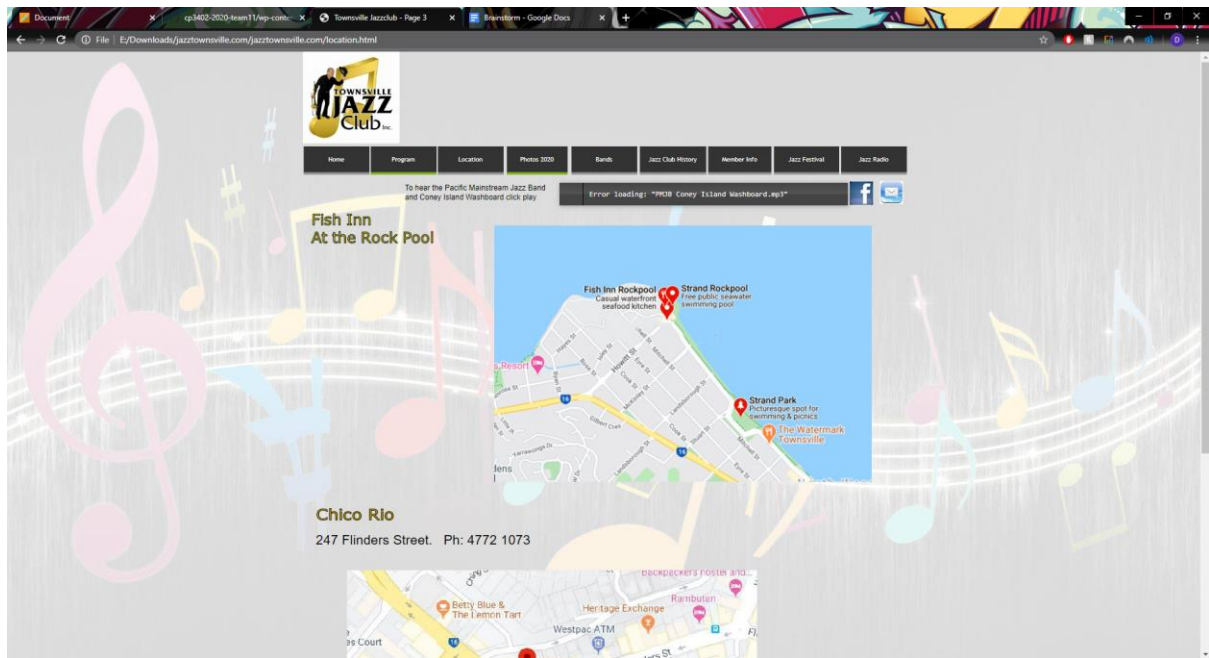

The call to action needs to be much clearer and actually link to the programs page.

There should also be a clear call to action to the signup page here.

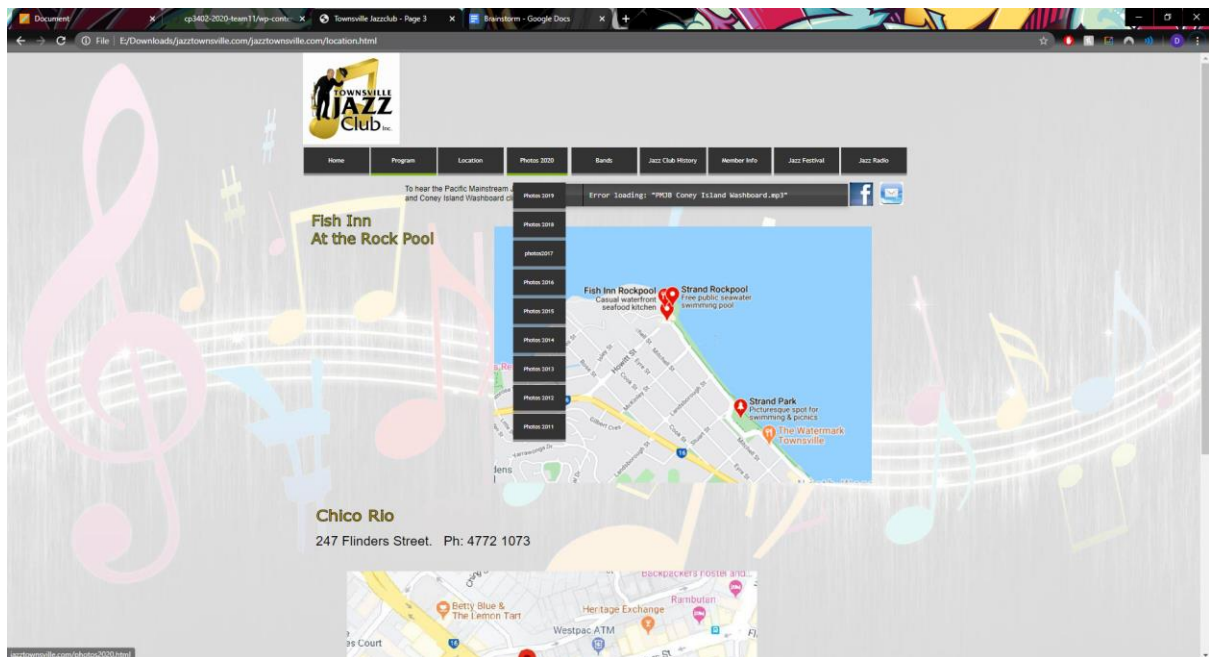

Having information for all of the programs on one page is great but it needs to be formatted better, maybe have the information inside of tables and stylise these as not to lose the posters' 'pizzazz'.

Since I intend for the information for the "Palmer Str. Jazz Festival" to be moved here it might be better to rename this page "Events".

Location Tab should be removed entirely, this information should be displayed either with the programs and possibly with the information on the first page (though it would be better to hide this in some way such as a read more button, so that the home page isn't cluttered).

Instead of having the photos tab drop down into a long list, it would be much better to simply link to a photos page where each year is displayed as a separate post (obviously not the full post would be displayed) which the users could then click into if they wanted to view the full photo archive from that year.

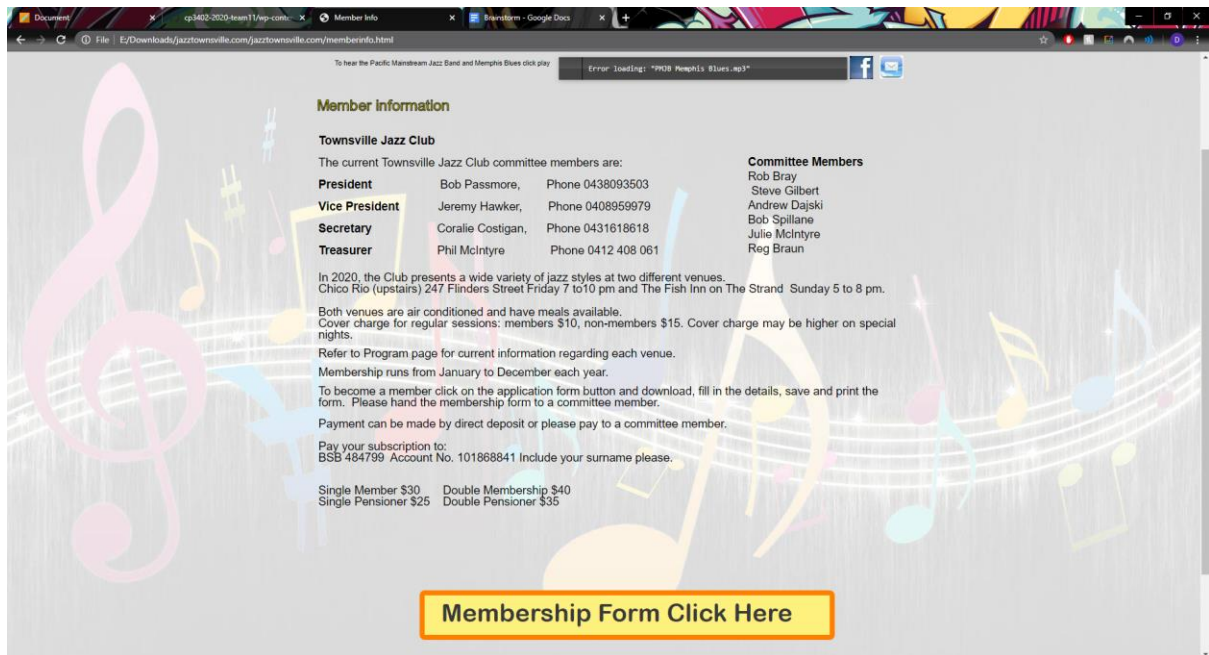

Similarly to the photos page, instead of having the huge drop down list it would be better to have bands as a single page with posts inside for each band. If you included a small amount of each post on the page this would also get rid of the horrible placement of the photos on this page seeing as there are photos at the top of each of the band pages.

This page is just a mess, info about some clubs can be found on the main "Jazz Club History" page while info about some other clubs are separated into their own pages in the drop down menu.

To keep all the information in one place there should just be one "Jazz Club History" page with a post for each club.

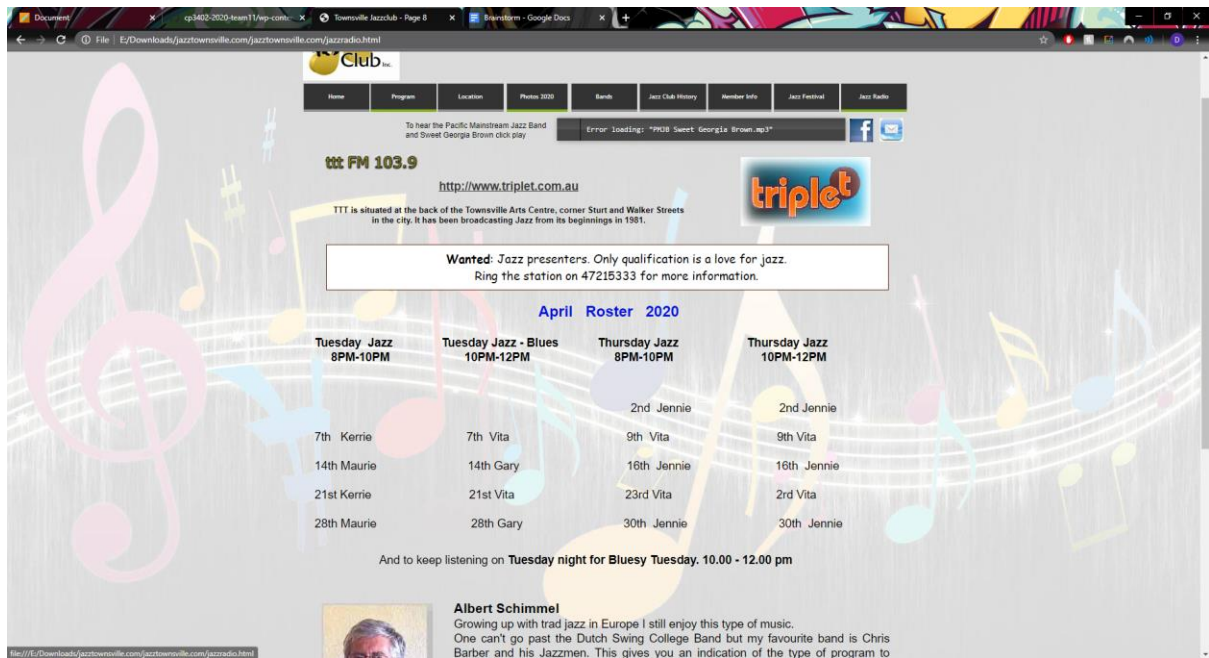

First and foremost the call to action needs to be immediately visible when a user comes to this page, not at the bottom of the page.

There should be an embedded form so that users can sign up with ease.

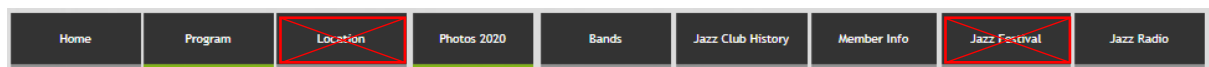

Some decisions also need to be made about what information is relevant on this page, for example we can definitely get rid of anything to do with the old sign-up system such as “pay your subscription to”

This information should be moved to the program/events page.

I have no clue what to do with this page, it just seems clustered and like there's too much going on, some feedback from you guys would be appreciated.

So with all this taken into the account the nav bar will still be very similar to the current, just with a little bit of streamlining and irrelevant tabs being removed.
